AMUSEMENTS

There will be two performances today of "East Lynne" at the Dorris theater. A matinee this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, and evening, at 8:30, to celebrate Thanksgiving day. The company presenting this famous play is one of Russell and Drew's best dramatic organizations. Miss Blanche Stoddard, who plays the two great dual roles of "Lady Isabel" and "Madame Vene," is counted one of the handsomest of American actresses, also one of the leading emotional artists.

MISS BLANCHE STODDARD

Several noted players are also members of this company. Miss Kitty Bel-more, Cora Thorndyke, Donah Bonrin, Gerale Humphries and Louis Belmore, are all artists who never appear only in first-class and well known companies. A very fine performance of "East Lynne" is promised. The matinee and evening performances should be crowded, for it will be a long time before another opportunity presents itself to see this great play so well staged. Choice reserved seats are still on sale at The Brisley Drug Co., Hotel Adams.

VIEW OF OUR CITIZEN.

To the Editor of The Republican——Sir: I do not agree with you in all things, political, but I read your paper because I find the news in it, and I read your editorials because I find brains mixed with your printer's ink.

I have traveled somewhat, and I observe somewhat, when I do travel.
To specify: I observe that the "block" has been suppressed, since I was here last, and its habits supposedly driven without the confines of your very moral city.

In this morning's paper I notice a reference to the fact that the suppression of the "block" has not proven to the commercial advantage of the city.
If this be considered a question of morality, I protest against the introduction of commercial considerations—I online that the man's morality upon which a commercial value can be placed will not pass muster when St.
Peter calls the roll.

But there are questions of expediency to be considered, as well. I am aware that there is a very large class of our American people who wish to prove their sovereign rights by compelling all others to do as they think they should do. Amongst these, there are some who believe that they will come nearer to the realization of their desires by not attempting the impossible—they believe that it is better to regulate that which cannot be suppressed. Experience has proven them to be right in this. There was a time when, if a running sore appeared on a man's body, the doctors would use drugs to drive the poison of the sore away, with the result that the poison was scattered throughout the patient's system. I am not prepared to speculate, but I have learned that you have
